

This page is your gift envelope. Use it to hold your topic cards, score cards and game play instructions. Just follow the cut & fold directions. (Or not, if you just want to put your components in a ziplock bag.)

 1) cut all the way along the outside edges

2) turn the page over so the white side is facing up, with the logo at the top

then place your topic cards in the center rectangle (on the plain white side), then your score cards, then your instructions

3) then fold this panel up over the bottom edge of your stack of game components

4) then fold the two sides over the stack

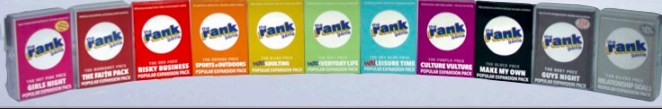

5) the stack of game components will be about this thick

6) then fold the logo panel over the top of the components and you're all set!

The game about YOU & your people.

1) fold in half length-wise, here →

Do you rank the choices from best to worst or worst to best? Most cards are best to worst, but if the topic is a bad thing, you rank them from most tolerable to least tolerable. Always look at the card from the Ranker's POV.

Why does the Ranker get two points on every round? It makes the game fair in case the number of players doesn't divide equally into the 10 rounds of play, which would deny some players opportunities for points.

How does scoring work in teams? The team players alternate being Ranker & Guesser, but they both receive the same points on each round.

Should we be competitive or just have fun? 'Comon, you can do both!

If one player is way ahead in points, how can the trailing players win? Most groups check who's winning at the end of rounds 3, 6 & 9. Some make the last round "winner takes all," but all mostly just enjoy gameplay.

Why is it "my call" on a rule or two? Because you're smart. Duh!

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

Who goes first? Whoever's first name is earliest in the alphabet game, or let the Ranker on each round pick a color. Your call.

Which color cards should we play? Pick a color for the whole game, or let the Ranker on each round pick a color. Your call.

Green cards have everyday life topics for all ages
Yellow cards have everyday topics for ages 12+
Blue cards have leisure activities humans like to do
12 Expansion Packs are available (flip page over)

What if a player isn't familiar with a card's topic? Skip the card. Sometimes people like to play Rank where the Ranker picks whatever card they want, or teams pick cards for the other team, or the whole group picks cards together. Unless you're all fierce competitors, just decide what's best for your group and agree before you start a game.

What if we disagree on what a card means? Move on to the next card.

4) fold in half here so that the green & blue are facing one another

FOUR GAME MODES YOU CAN PLAY

ICEBREAKER - "Get to know each other" 2+ PEOPLE
Pick a card and everyone shares their RANK. No scoring. Everyone wins.

SPOTLIGHT - "Does everyone know each other?" 3+ PEOPLE
One Ranker. All others are Guessers. Ranker rotates clockwise.

TEAMS OF TWO - "Do you really know each other?" 4+ PEOPLE
All teams play every card. (Or, each team can draw a new card. Your pick.)

TWO TEAMS - "Divide, Confide, Decide, Collide" 6+ PEOPLE
Split players into two even teams. Each team has a Ranker and the rest of their team collaborates to make their best guess on the Ranker's RANK. On each round, each team puts forth a new Ranker. Both teams play every card. (Or, each team can draw a new card. Your call.)

2) fold in half here so that the green & red are on opposite sides

BASIC GAME PLAY

Every player gets a scorecard of their own.

The "Ranker" draws a card, reads it aloud, and discretely writes their preferred order (their RANK) of the four choices on their scorecard. At the same time, the other players guess the Ranker's order by listing the "A, B, C, D" in the four boxes on their own scorecard. Players compare their answers. Joy, sorrow and hilarity ensues. The "Guessers" get one point for each of the four ranked lines that match. The Ranker automatically gets two points. Gameplay repeats, with the Ranker position rotating clockwise. The player or team with the most points after 10 rounds wins!

3) fold in half here so that the yellow & red are facing one another

5) along the outside edges ✂
