

My Financial Manifesto

I take full responsibility for where I stand financially.

In obedience to God, I faithfully pay my tithes,
give offerings, and help those in need.

I forgive and release all who have ever financially disadvantaged me in any way.

I do not allow my net worth to define my self-worth.

I refuse to enable irresponsible people to continue their negative financial behavior.

I walk in integrity in all my financial dealings.

I maintain a healthy balance between saving for the future and enjoying my blessings today.

I reject a scarcity mentality and choose to help others achieve their goals by sharing my knowledge, experiences, contacts, and other resources.

I continually seek to increase my knowledge of financial concepts and strategies.

I look to God as my Supreme Financial Adviser and the Supplier of all my needs.

© Excerpted from The One-Minute Money Mentor for Women; copyright 2018
Deborah Smith Pegues published by Harvest House Publishers. All rights reserved.

Deborah Smith Pegues