On a recent Focus on the Family with Jim Daly, marriage coach Barb Rosberg shared how she prays for her husband, Gary, from head to toe…

"Lord Jesus, you know those women that my husband has seen at the mall, on television, in the commercials. In the name and the blood of Jesus Christ, I am asking for a "divine delete." Please don't allow those visuals to come through his mind and end up in this marriage bed."

"Father, I ask that you would delete anything in his thoughts, anything that his ears have heard that was not my voice. I pray that if there is any voice building him up that wasn't mine…. If there's any voice sweet-talking this man…. If there is anybody that thinks they could even come near this marriage, because of the blood of Jesus Christ, I am praying for this man, my husband."

"And Lord, I would ask that you would give this man a heart and a mind that are guarded through the power of Jesus Christ. Will you guard his heart? Because out of his heart will flow his life story? And Lord Jesus, I ask that when he puts on his belt today, that Lord, he will remember to put the belt of truth around his waist."

"And I pray that when he reads your Word, that he will be reminded of Your life-transforming principles throughout his day, to make him a better man, a better businessman, a man that chooses to have great and clean relationships. And Father, I pray that his legs would run to share the gospel of peace."

"I pray that he would be a man that would be quick to say he is sorry and he would be quick to say he's wrong. I pray for those feet of his that they will walk truly on the path of God. And I pray that he will not step to the left and he will not step to the right, but he will hear a voice behind him saying, 'This is the way, walk in it.' In the name of Jesus, Amen."
