

RAISING Godly GIRLS®

Guide to a Biblical Worldview

DEAR READERS,

Focus on the Family is excited to team up with American Heritage Girls to help guide you and your daughter as you dive into the Raising Godly Girls Guide to a Biblical Worldview. This e-book contains behavioral study findings, practical advice, and scriptural wisdom, all underscoring the importance of today's Christians adopting a biblical worldview.[1]

What is a worldview? It is the set of assumptions and beliefs through which one sees the world. If you believe the Bible is God-breathed, its teachings should inform how you view the world. A Christian will, therefore, think differently than non-Christians, and this will affect every area of their lives. Incredibly, a May 2021 study sponsored by the Family Research Council and contained in the report "Perceptions about biblical worldview and Its Application" found that only 9% of Christian Americans actually have a biblical worldview.[1]

Consider this: Two-thirds of Americans identify as Christian, and the study found that 51% claim to have a biblical worldview. But here's the clincher. Those self-proclaimed Bible believers were asked specific questions. The researchers found that of those Christians who thought they had a biblical worldview, only 9% got all the questions correct. Clearly, the study brought to light the need for education around the eternal Truths contained in the Bible that are so applicable in today's world.

SOME KEY POINTS TO NOTE FROM THE STUDY INCLUDE:

- 26% believe the personal accumulation of money and other forms of wealth have been entrusted to them by God to manage for His purposes.
- (Only) 29% believe that the best indicator of success in life is consistent obedience to God.
- (Only) 33% believe that human beings are born with a sinful nature and can only be saved from the consequences of sin by Jesus Christ.
- (Only) 47% believe that when they die, they will go to Heaven only because they have confessed their sins and have accepted Jesus Christ as their savior.
- (Only) 48% believe that it is very important for their religious faith to influence every dimension of life.
- (Only) 49% say that their most likely source of moral guidance in any given situation would be the Bible.
- (A whopping) 49% accept reincarnation as a possibility after they die.

Focus on the Family and American Heritage Girls are committed to coming alongside parents and the Church to underscore the personal importance of—and need for—a biblical worldview. As you dig into scripture, we pray that you find our video series and the pages of this book aid you with your intentional efforts. Our hope is to provide some comfort and encouragement on your parenting journey. We invite you to find out more by listening to Focus on the Family's Practice Makes Parent podcast with Danny and Rebecca St. James (especially recent interviews with Patti on the topic), as well as the Raising godly Girls daily radio feature and blog.

Remember: This is a marathon, not a sprint—so take heart and commit to the long haul. Our journey together will, little by little, bring Christ's Kingdom from heaven down to earth. We're praying for you and cheering you on as you continue to root your girl in His timeless truths.

May you be blessed by His enduring love,

TRUTH

Throughout this e-book, you'll notice we give special attention to the word "Truth" in that we capitalize the word. It's important to know that Truth, in the context of biblical worldview, is in reference to the eternal Truths that God lays out in Scripture. In a world that tells us to "live your truth," believers know that Truth isn't relative—it's concrete, a firm foundation set by our Creator.

Find the Tools You Need

Raising a godly girl who is able to spread God's love in our broken world proves easier said than done. No parent should have to go it alone. (Or maybe, you're not the girl mom/girldad, but you minister to families, and you find yourself with this guide...keep reading! Knowing the needs of your parents and girls is vital in meeting them where they are!) Finding a community of supportive, like-minded fellow believers holds the key to the success at countering the culture.

ACTION STEP

Good news: you've already taken the first step in your journey toward raising a godly girl—you've started reading this Raising Godly Girls Guide! Resources, like this one, are the arrows in your parenting quiver. Just as no one is born automatically knowing calculus, no one is born knowing the ins and outs of great parenting strategy. It takes time to learn, and it takes voices you can trust to guide you. Together with your spouse or co-parent, create a list of shared resources on which you can rely when you don't readily have the answers!

Supporting your girl in establishing a biblical worldview in a post-Christian culture starts with building up confidence in yourself. God calls the equipped, sure, but more often than not, God equips the called. For this, for your girl's deepest good, God called you. It's time to answer the call. Dig into Scripture (God's Word!), build a community (a virtual one is a great starting place, but don't limit yourself there!), and lean on your trusted people when you need to. We aren't meant to go it alone; after all, you know the age-old adage: it takes a village to raise a child. Ready for more good news? God's Church is that village. As Christians, we belong to a centuries-old network of families raising their children in our faith tradition—look to your faith community and ministries to build your family's personal village.

Biblical Worldview at a Glance

BEFORE WE DIVE IN, LET'S EXPLORE THE WHY BEHIND THE WHAT.

When we stop to consider that the Bible can guide our hearts through painful uncertainty, we're left with peaceful clarity.

Today's culture seems to be at a fever pitch, a breaking point. There are some topics that we, as parents to young children, never in a million years thought we would have to address. Yet here we stand. Issues of mental health and suicide, sexuality and gender identity, the dignity of all human life from womb to tomb—they're topics and conversations happening at a younger and younger age no matter how we try to shield our kiddos from the darkness. We're left feeling defensive—like we have to put our guard up and form a bubble around our families. But what if before the culture dictated its "truths" to our kids, we could give them a solid foundation of understanding? What if they knew the right answer before they're ever even questioned?

Before you feel like you need to have all the answers, take a pause and remember where the Source of all Truth is intentionally positioned. He is calm in the storm, clarity in chaos, love in hatred, light in darkness. His Word is an everlasting source of authority and wisdom—its Truths stand the test of time. A biblical worldview will never be obsolete, because His Word is always relevant.

We cannot know what the conversations or cultural beliefs of tomorrow will be—but we know what God believes. We know where He calls us to stand—on the path of righteousness. Applying a biblical worldview, no matter the issue, will be a strong first step in quelling confusion, quashing doubt, and recognizing fact from fiction.

A biblical worldview is built upon a number of Scripturally-based precepts that help guide us toward understanding. Use this as a jumping off point in your own journey toward developing a richer biblical worldview. Establishing these baseline Truths will also help your girl develop her discernment skills and feel strengthened in her biblical worldview.

Keep these Truths top of mind as we dive deeper into what it takes to develop a biblical worldview and why it is vital to stay ingrained in His Word to counter today's culture.

"Do not love the world or anything in the world. If anyone loves the world, love for the Father is not in them. For everything in the world—the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life—comes not from the Father but from the world. The world and its desires pass away, but whoever does the will of God lives forever."

"IT'S NEVER TOO LATE TO TRY"

We use this to encourage kids to step out and try new things when they're afraid.

In a 2021 Barna research study, only 6% of polled adults professed a worldview hinged on the Bible, down from 17% four years prior. We could take this statistic, admit failure as Christians, and throw in the towel—or we can use it as a call to action!

> If you're overwhelmed by a lack of biblical knowledge or how to live it out, take heart—indeed, it's never too late to try!
> Research also suggests that Gen Z and Gen Alpha have increased respect for adults who confess their own shortcomings. Below you'll find a list of terms found in Scripture, spoken in Christian circles, or have deeper meaning when evaluated through the lens of a biblical worldview:

Once you're comfortable with these terms, ask your daughter for her interpretation of these terms. Note any discrepancies and work together to understand and explore parts of your faith tradition that she may be unfamiliar with or uncertain about. For a more practical understanding, explore how these terms play out in your daily life. Can she identify Christian fellowship in her social interactions? Does she recognize the role she plays in evangelism? Find the real-life applications of these Christian terms and aid her in recognizing how her faith is woven into every element of her life.

Why is a Biblical Worldview So Important?

EVERYONE HAS A WORLDVIEW.

It is a uniquely human experience to try and make sense of the world we live in.

Each of us can look outside of ourselves and inspect the world, its happenings, its mysteries, and its similarities and differences. Since each of us is born in God's image, believer or not, we are all capable of this type of global awareness. It's up to each of us to be intentional in how we form our worldview.

We look to our worldview to help us answer life's biggest questions—where did everything come from, why are we here, how should we live, and what happens when I die[2]? The world is full of as many unique perspectives as there are people, but categorically we can bucket this worldview idea into three categories—naturalism, transcendentalism, and theism. Naturalism boils down to the belief that nothing is supernatural—there is nothing beyond this world and universe. This category includes atheism and humanism. Transcendentalism believes that everything in our reality is the result of manifestation and that everything is connected. This category includes Buddhism and Hinduism. And finally, there is theism. This category of belief recognizes that we exist by the hand of God—that we were created by Him and rely on Him. Theism includes Christianity, Islam, and Judaism. But what sets a biblical worldview apart from that of a theistic worldview?

A biblically-based Christian worldview hinges on the understanding of God's story for humanity—Creation, Fall, Redemption, and Restoration. With a biblical worldview, we live in the hope-filled understanding that we are part of God's plan. He is a God of restoration, and we get to take part in that process. Jesus died for your girl, yes, but He also died for you, your friend, your neighbor, your bully, your ancestor, your enemy. A biblical worldview is a lens through which we can (and must!) filter every relationship, interaction, and belief.

Today's culture will not instill a biblical worldview in your girl—instead, if left to the world, each of us would come away with a mishmash of ideas, some in direct contradiction to the Truths God establishes in His Word. We are surrounded by ideas, voices, and diversity of thought more than ever before. Is Sunday service the only place your daughter is hearing God's Truth? Is she being steeped in God's presence and plan for her the other six days of the week?

[2]Understanding worldviews: The Heart & The Mind, worldviews and Cultural Fluency, Dr. William Brown, Colson Center

So how do we weave a biblical worldview into our girls' daily lives? The key is making the Bible the first place you turn to in times of discernment. God's direction is available for His people, but we must first open our hearts, eyes, and minds to His Word. It's been said "Don't tell me God is silent when your Bible is closed." 2 Timothy 3:16 (NIV) tells us that "all Scripture is God-breathed and is useful for teaching, rebuking, correcting and training in righteousness." In addition, both Deuteronomy 6 and Matthew 28 guide Christians to weave integrated faith lessons into children's normal lives. Conversations at the dinner table or car ride, gently weaving biblical Truth into discipline or heart training, spreading the gospel generously, all hold weight to bring a newfound biblical worldview into "real life."

ACTION STEP

In order to apply Scripture in your conversations, you must first memorize it. Get it on board in your heart and mind.

The best time to start your Scripture memorization journey is now! Memorizing these verses will supply some comfort and wisdom as you set out to raise a godly girl:

- "Do not be anxious about anything, but in every situation, by prayer and petition, with thanksgiving, present your requests to God." – Philippians 4:6, NIV
- "Do not conform to the pattern of this world, but be transformed by the renewing of your mind." – Romans 12:2a, NIV
- "And whatever you do, whether in word or deed, do it all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God the Father through him." – Colossians 3:17, NIV
- "Therefore, with minds that are alert and fully sober, set your hope on the grace to be brought to you when Jesus Christ is revealed at his coming." – 1 Peter 1:13, NIV
- "Trust in the Lord with all your heart and lean not on your own understanding; in all your ways submit to him, and he will make your paths straight." – Proverbs 3:5-6, NIV
- "You will seek me and find me when you seek me with all your heart." – Jeremiah 29:13, NIV

When a girl's identity and her worldview lens are rooted in faith, the Gospel message doesn't stay neatly tucked in her Bible only to be taken off the shelf each Sunday—it impacts every part of her life! A biblical worldview shapes the way she understands herself, her purpose in the world, and how she can influence an unholy world for Christ using the God-given gifts bestowed upon her at the moment of her creation.

Confusion, questioning, and doubt—they are all taking center stage in the daily cultural happenings of society. But with a biblical worldview comes a steady, unwavering, and unchanging understanding of Truth. God's Word is a firm foundation. He is the Rock of Ages. The Holy Spirit helps us recognize what is good and what is evil. Scripture provides us with relevant answers to today's questions (see pages 16-17 to learn how to apply a biblical worldview to today's biggest pop culture topics). This grounding in Truth becomes a refuge from the uncertainty and anxiety of today's culture where our decisions define us, and our emotions control us. This call to live out the Gospel and connect every facet of daily life back to our Creator isn't an easy one, but it's a godly one.

ACTION STEP

Prayer closets became a popular practice years ago following the smash hit film War Room. Consider how setting up a comfortable, dedicated environment for your girl might spark her desire to seek God's wisdom. A walk-in closet, or other separated space, can provide refuge for your girl. Keep a Bible, lined sticky notes, pens, and a box of tissues in a shower caddy. Throw a cozy blanket, floor pillow, or other comfort-item in to make the floor space welcoming. With a biblical worldview, we can approach our problems as opportunities to see God at work. By capturing her prayers in writing, she can look back and see how He hears us when "we ask anything according to his will" (1 John 5:14, NIV). And remember, faith is usually more caught than taught! Consider setting up your own prayer closet and dedicate time to witness the Spirit moving in your life too.

When your daughter has a big question, where does she turn? If all goes right, in times of unknowing, she turns to you, her parent. By divine design, the home is the best place for core discipleship. As she ages, it's common to stray from the parent and turn to the friend. But ultimately there is one place, one respite for our girls that we desire first and foremost—and that is the arms of the Father.

Girls today are inundated with the voices of others and opinions on what is right and true. Parents, teachers, coaches, influencers, they all speak loudly into the minds of girls who are looking to discover their identity.

But there's one voice that can be difficult to comprehend amid the noise of the others—God's. It's unlikely that your girl hears a loud booming voice that she knows belongs to her Creator. She probably, like a lot of us, hears that still, small voice in the back of her mind. It can be hard to decipher, especially in difficult circumstances, if this is God speaking Truth or the enemy seeking to manipulate.

ACTION STEP

Grab your Bible, your girl, and a table at your local coffee or ice cream shop. Get out of the house and into the Word—this simple act shows her how we can live out our faith in a public way. Dive into Scripture with the help of a pre-set Bible Study plan or set out your own course using a Bible Study method, like the O.I.A. Method or Lectio Divina.

O.I.A. Method:

This Bible study method, also known as an Inductive Bible study, is broken down into three parts: observation, interpretation, and application.

Learn more about this method at oiamethod.com

Lectio Divina:

This Bible study method, translated from Latin as "Divine Reading," is a traditional monastic way of reading Scripture, divided into four practices: read, mediate, pray, contemplate.

Biblical Worldview Application:
POPULAR TOPICS

A BALANCED WORLDVIEW IS ONLY AS GOOD AS ITS ABILITY TO INTERSECT OUR REAL LIVES.

With the cultural battleground in full action, families are being reminded of the importance of instilling a biblically-based Christian worldview in their children.

The most notable space your daughter will likely feel resistance to her biblical worldview is public discourse. Popular culture has turned certain topics, like human dignity, marriage, and identity, into matters of opinion and emotionally-dictated reality. Rather than raising a girl who is constantly reacting to cultural opinion, questioning her beliefs, and haphazardly defending her position, give her a solid bedrock of Truth. After all, effective apologetics starts with an established, knowledgeable baseline. Lay the foundations of faith proactively to counter the culture.

Rather than approaching these subject matters with your girl in a reactive way, together seek first what God says. When we give our girls a solid biblical worldview, they can anticipate the world's opposition to it, and be ready to stand tall in His Truths.

Below you'll find a list of popular topics, ways to begin the conversation, and Scripture to point to:

SANCTITY OF LIFE

Out of all of God's Creation, human beings are uniquely made in God's image and likeness. Therefore, all human life has unquestionable value, worth, and dignity—whether unborn or elderly, differently-abled or ill. This distinction, that humans were made in God's image, sets us apart from the rest of creation.

- Ask: If human beings are set apart by our godly image, what does it mean for human life to be "sanctified" or "sacred"? According to God, when do we become valuable? Do we ever stop being worthy of the life He has given us?

  Find it in the Bible: Genesis 1:27, Psalm 8:4-5, Matthew 25:40, John 15:12

GENDER IDENTITY AND FEMALE EQUALITY

God made two sexes—male and female. He made all men and women equal in importance, personhood, and dependence. In the Creation story we hear that God made woman as "man's helpmate", which culture frequently misunderstands. But, there is great value of the word "helpmate," in Scripture—the Hebrew word ezer. This word is used commonly throughout Scripture, a term used to describe God—the helpmate to Israel. Together, Adam and Eve were created to work jointly, two parts of a whole, with purpose and a deep love for God. Man and woman—two separate genders that are equal, unique, and beautifully different in the eyes of God.

- Ask: If God created man and woman equally, as two parts of a whole, does that mean men and women are just the same? Does this difference mean men are "more important" or women are "less important"? What are some ways that men and women in the Church are serving equally, but differently?

  Find it in the Bible: Genesis 2:18, 1 Corinthians 11:11-12, Galatians 3:27-28, Ephesians 5:21

MARRIAGE AND FAMILY

God's design for marriage and family is that one man and one woman be united in marriage, and from that union comes the blessing of new life. This godly design for marriage includes one man and one woman, both made in God's image, as two parts of a whole. From this complete union comes new life, impossible without the opposite sex. This completeness, this wholeness of man and woman together, is explained as the "two becoming one flesh." The model of sacrificial love between Christ and His Church sets the standard for the nature and order of Christian marriage. If you are married, consider reciting the vows you and your spouse promised on your wedding day back to your girl.

- Ask: God designed marriage and families—how do you see that modeled in our own family? What are some facts about marriage that our worldly culture misunderstands or downplays?

  Find it in the Bible: Matthew 19:5-6, Mark 10:8, 1 Corinthians 11:3, Ephesians 5:25-27, 5:31-33

VALUE OF CREATION

Christians are responsible for the conservation of creation. We are called to steward well all the blessings that He has given us, including this beautiful earth full of fragile ecosystems and intricately designed creatures. If your daughter is passionate about conservationism, encourage her to use her desire for activism as an incentive to activate for Christ.

- Ask: How can you shift your heart of environmental activism toward stewardship of a loving God's creation? What are some ways our family can honor God's creation and care for our earthly home?

  Find it in the Bible: Genesis 1:21, Genesis 9:12, Nehemiah 9:6, Psalm 24:1

YOU'VE READ THE SCRIPTURES, TURNED TO GOD, AND ARE WORKING WITH YOUR GIRL TO DEVELOP AN INTENTIONAL, BIBLICAL WORLDVIEW.

Now what? These questions are meant to spark conversation between you and your girl. Treat them as a starting point, not a checklist. Allow the discussion with your girl to blossom and transform into the relationship-fostering conversation God has planned for you both!

- Who does God say He is? Who does the world say God is? How are these different? How are these the same?
- Who was Jesus? What role does He play in your salvation? What does it mean that He is Lord over your life?
- What is our role as Christians in the world? (Seek out Jesus's instructions in Matthew 28.)
- How might your biblical worldview affect your relationship with others? In what situations does holding to the Bible put you at risk for rejection?

WOMEN OF THE BIBLE MATCHING GAME

The Bible is chock-full of stories about women of tremendous faith. Through historical figures of the Bible and tracing the genealogy of Christ you can see how God worked through women in the Old and New Testaments to carry out His redemption plan for future generations. It is important that you and your girl understand this heritage through the eyes of Scripture so that together you can appreciate the legacy left for you to continue in her faith walk. Through this Bible Scavenger Hunt, you'll learn how these women in history became the people God created them to be to impact and influence those around them.
