Who's Most Likely

A harvest party game

BY JANINE PETRY

Gather your closest friends and get to know them even better. Start by giving each a sheet of questions to fill out. When they're done, read the prompts out loud so your friends can shout out the name of the girl they voted for. Have each person tally her own marks and add them at the end to find out who is the fall favorite, most fashionable for fall, best taster for fall or just an outdoorsy fall person!

Five In A Row!

A game of thankfulness

BY FAITH WISMER

Give each person a THANK card. On it, you'll find a few empty squares. Before the game starts, each person can write one thing they're thankful for in each square. Be specific! Then they can write each on a separate caller card, noting the column at the top with a T, H, A, N or K. This will personalize the game and is a great way to get to know each other better.

Choose someone to read the caller cards and then start the game. Every time a caller card is read, put a marker, such as a button, M&M or corn kernel, on the square that matches. When someone gets five squares in a row, that person should call out, "Thank!"
